Noddle's Baby.

"Have you ever seen a baby?" writes M. T. Noddle. "I don't mean the senseless, squalling bits of humanity that most people have; but a pure, sweet little human cherub, like that precious little son of mine, who is one week old today. Until one day last week I detected babies, and always declared that I should drown the first that had the impudence to make its deafening debut upon my quiet and peaceful domestic stage. Mine is the only baby I ever saw that I could love; and yet one thing troubles me. The little angel, having come from Heaven, where there is no night, has not learned that we mortals ought to sleep at least eight hours out of the twenty-four, and I begin to despair of ever being able to teach him any better. With this slight exception, our cherub is perfect; and I could not condemn him for such a trifle, though even if I should he could not complain of having been condemned unheard. But I will be patient, for if the murderer of Fisk deserves three trials, how many more trials should we give to the innocent murderer of sleep? I do wish some philanthropic individual would establish a domestic school for the purpose of teaching matrimonially disposed young men the art of holding babies. Had I acquired this art when young my wife would not now be obliged to suffer the agonies of suspense whenever the child is under my fatherly protection. The first time I attempted to clasp my first-born to my throbbing bosom, the nurse told me to hold out my hands in front, which I did. Then she carefully laid the precious burden across them, and would you believe it, instead of quietly reclining in a horizontal position as it did in her arms, it suddenly doubled itself up, and, recklessly striking its heels to its head, slipped through my arms to the floor before I could think an inch. I quickly picked up my fallen second edition, but before I could get a good firm hold of the yielding youngster he gave a convulsive twist backward and turned a back somersault on to the bed. The doctor wants us to bring the baby up "by hand," but I object, for the reason that I was brought up by my mother's slipper, and think that system far more effectual."

Ladies' Feet in China.

A writer in All the Year Round says of ladies' feet in the Celestial Empire: "The operations necessary for distorting the feet generally commence between the ages of six and nine, and the later it is deferred the greater is the pain inflicted on the girl. Long strips of native calico are bound round the foot, going from the heel over the instep and toes; they are then passed under the foot and round the heel, and are fixed very firmly. The operation causes much pain, and takes a long time (usually two or three years), before it is perfected, for the only agent employed is the long bandage of cloth. The feet remain extremely tender and useless for all practical purposes till the bones, &c., have become set in the new shape into which they are forced. It is said after the lapse of a few years, if the operation has been skillful, there is no pain, and the foot becomes, in a manner, deadened, the effect of the bandaging being to check the circulation of the blood and to prevent the further growth and development of the foot. A medical observer tells us that 'there is a class of women whose vocation it is to bandage the feet of children, and who do their work very neatly; and, from what I have seen, the Chinese woman who in childhood have undergone skillful treatment do not suffer much pain, beyond the weakness of the foot, from the destruction of the symmetrical arch, and the inconvenience of being unable to walk when the foot is unbound and unsupported. If the feet have been carelessly bound in infancy, the ankle in the woman is generally tender, and much walking will cause the foot to swell and be very painful.'"

Love of the Beautiful.

Place a young girl under the care of a kindhearted, graceful woman, and unconsciously to herself she grows into a graceful lady. Place a boy in the establishment of a thorough-going, straight-forward business man, and he becomes a self-reliant business man. Children are susceptible creatures, and circumstances, and scenes, and actions always impress them as you influence them, not by arbitrary rule nor by stern example alone but in a thousand other ways that speak through beauty forms, pretty pictures, &c., so will they grow. Teach your children, then, to love the beautiful. Give them a corner in the garden for flowers; encourage them to put it in shape of a hanging basket; allow them to have their favorite trees; teach them to wander in the pretty wood; let them show them where they can best view the sunset; rouse them in the morning with stern, "Time to work!" but the enthusiastic "See the beautiful sunrise!" buy for them pretty pictures, and encourage them to decorate their rooms in his or her childish way. Give them an inch and they will go a mile. Allow them a privilege, and they will make your home beautiful. — Wisconsin Ed. Journal.

Fur is to be worn a great deal this winter, but in small quantities at a time. There is nothing so ugly and unbecoming, so overwhelming and shapeless, as large-sized furs. They make young ladies look like their grandmothers. Always remember, small collars, narrow bands for trimming, muffs which suggest delicate hands, and, for the young especially, nothing heavier or darker than sealskin or ermine.

The Christian Union in Chicago is composed of young men and women, and this is the reason it is so interesting and efficient.

Philadelphia is getting married at the rate of twenty-six couples a day.

THE SUN.

WEEKLY—SEMI-WEEKLY—DAILY.

THE WEEKLY SUN is too widely known to require any extended recommendation; but the reasons which have already given it fifty thousand subscribers, and which will give it many thousands more, are briefly as follows:

It is a first-rate newspaper. All the news of the day will be found in it, condensed when unimportant, at full length when of moment, and always presented in a clear, intelligible and interesting manner.

It is a first-rate family paper, full of entertaining and instructive reading of every kind, but containing nothing that can offend the most delicate and scrupulous taste.

It is a first-rate story paper. The best tales and romances of current literature are carefully selected and legibly printed in its pages.

It is an independent political paper. The most fresh and instructive articles on agricultural topics regularly appear in this department.

It is an independent political paper, belonging to no party and wearing no collar. It fights for principle and for the election of the best men to office. It especially devotes its energies to the exposure of the great corruptions that now weaken and disgrace our country, and threaten to undermine republican institutions altogether.

It has no fear of laws, and asks no favors from their supporters.

It reports the actions for the ladies and the markets for the men, especially the cattle-market, to which it pays particular attention.

Finally, it is the cheapest paper published. One dollar a year will secure it for any subscriber. It is not necessary to get up a club in order to have THE WEEKLY SUN at this rate. Any one who sends a single dollar will get the paper for a year.

THE WEEKLY SUN—Eight pages, fifty six columns. Only $1.00 a year. No discounts from this rate.

THE SEMI-WEEKLY SUN—Same size as the Daily Sun, $2.00 a year. A discount of 20 per cent. to clubs of 10 or over.

THE DAILY SUN—A large four-page newspaper of twenty-eight columns. Daily circulation over 120,000. All the news for 2 cents. Subscription price 50 cents a month, or $5.00 a year. To clubs of 10 or over, a discount of 20 per cent.
